September 2022

From Our Minister

A few weeks ago, I went swimming with a friend in the Connecticut River between New Hampshire and Vermont. I haven't spent much time in Vermont, but when there I reflected on how some of my ancestors had. At least one line of my ancestry had moved between southwest New Hampshire and northeast Vermont. They knew this river, had crossed it more times than I, had swum, I am sure, between its banks. I shivered, not from the refreshing cool of the water, but from the sense that this landscape knew me, better than I knew it. Some of the older trees may have shared breath with my forebears; the rocks, shaped by the erosion of water and time, may have once borne witness to their travails. But the water itself, I realized as I immersed myself in it, this water and I were meeting as though for the first time.

Now I am sure someone could probably figure out the statistics of whether a particular molecule of water and a particular molecule of what was once and is now me or my ancestors had ever met before, and my guess is that the chances are not that slim. But the thing is, the river, old as it is, is constantly flowing, moving, changing over. The Connecticut River today is the same river that was there when my ancestors crossed, the same river that was there before Europeans set foot on this continent, and yet it is also completely and utterly different.

In this way, a river is like a congregation, maintaining its identity over time, even as its boundaries shift and its mass is ceaselessly transforming. The Unitarian Universalist Congregation of Franklin is not the same as it was when it was founded, as it was one hundred years ago, or forty years ago, or twenty years ago, or two years ago, or even two months ago. And yet, it is the same congregation. More than just carrying forward the building and the trust fund, we are bearers of pieces of culture, tradition, mission, identity, and legacy left by our predecessors. While also being uniquely ourselves. Always changing. The people who have been here the longest are not the same people they were when they joined, nor are the newest members. We transform, through our relationships with each other and independently.

We come back after the summer recess, the same and different, tributaries into a common stream. On Sunday, September 11, we will join together the waters we have collected over the summer, to mark symbolically the reunion of our lives into this community. I am excited to be continuing through the rapids with you.

May we flow together with common purpose on this great journey.

Love,
Rev. Ariel

Dear Members of the Congregation:

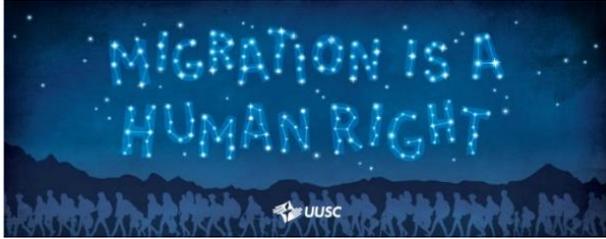

Now more than ever, our neighbors need our help! Food insecurity and hunger are very real issues for far too many households, and no one should have to choose between paying bills and putting food on the table. A year ago, the Pantry eliminated the requirement for residency in one of eight communities and ended the policy of limiting access to one visit per month. These changes are making a positive difference in the lives of many people, but the magnitude of need continues increase.

September is Hunger Action Month, a month when the Feeding America nationwide network of food banks and their member agencies unite to urge folks to take action against hunger in their communities.

To make a difference in your community, would you consider taking a special financial offering on one specific Sunday during September to support the Pantry's weekly purchase of farm-fresh milk? We are now serving over 100 households each week! Your funds WILL make a difference!

Sincerely,
Daisy Blaisdell
